

We are pleased to announce the addition of two new associate attorneys to our team. Adrian E. Ciacci and Thomas (Tom) F. Driscoll III have recently joined our firm.

Adrian E. Ciacci joined the firm in March 2017 and practices primarily in the areas of commercial real estate and land use. A graduate of George Mason University School of Law, Adrian previously worked at several federal agencies in Washington, D.C., including the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and more recently worked as an associate attorney for a Chester County law firm, where he represented municipal clients involved in land use, zoning and related matters. In addition to his professional work, Adrian strongly believes in giving back to the community and has recently taken steps to help organize an annual 5k run to raise awareness of opioid addiction and abuse.

Thomas (Tom) Driscoll III joined the firm in May 2017 and practices primarily in the areas of commercial real estate and land use. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, Tom has extensive experience representing individual clients, business entities, landlords and lessees, and taxing authorities in various areas of commercial law. Tom is also dedicated to helping children in the Delaware community and has volunteered for over ten years as an attorney for dependent and neglected children through the Office of the Child Advocate and also serves as counsel to the Wilmington Education Improvement Commission.

Adrian and Tom possess and exemplify the many qualities we look for and mentor in each new attorney and professional we add to the Tarabicos Grosso team – intelligence, hard work, attention to detail, and commitment to service. We are fortunate and excited to welcome Adrian and Tom to our expanding real estate and land use practices and look forward to many new and exciting projects for the firm and our clients for the remainder of 2017 and beyond!